HAPPENINGS

► Tenth Annual Holiday House

In 2008, the interior designer Iris Dankner founded Holiday House, a design showcase that creates a space for top designers and lifestyle brands to display their works and raise funds for breast-cancer research. (Dankner is a survivor.) This year's Holiday House, at the Academy Mansion from November 15 to December 6, includes designers James Rixner, Vanessa DeLeon Associates, Touijer, and many more. ► Mimi Zeiger at SVA

Los Angeles-based writer Mimi Zeiger examines the intersection of architecture and media culture in her writing.

SPACE OF THE WEEK

Re-Generation

A Brooklyn brownstone moves from one stylish family member to the next and now features artwork from Uganda, Angola, and Zimbabwe. SEE MORE >

Original 1900 plasterwork. The fixture is by Bertjan Pot for Moooi.

The zingy paint treatments in the entryway are by the Ugandan artist Moosh.

Another artwork by Moosh, this one a mural of the family, on the stair landing.

cultures in her writing. On November 14 at the School of Visual Arts, she will discuss how collaboration, structure, research, and critique shape exhibition-making in an age where the equalizing effect of digital media has made everyone a critic and curator. MORE >

► MAD Workshop

In this Museum of Arts and Design workshop, on November 11, artist Xenobia Bailey will invite participants into her gallery studio and teach them how to craft newspaper floral bouquets. These sculptural floral arrangements are inspired by the “funktional” African-American homemaker aesthetics of the 1960s and '70s, which inform Bailey's own practice. MORE >
